Experience

Lawrence Mandelker's reputation as an effective commercial litigator was forged in New York's state and federal courts, as well as courts in Boston, Los Angeles, Atlanta, Seattle and Alexandria, Va. He has litigated business torts (fraud, trade secret theft, unfair competition), real estate and financing issues, trademarks and patents, securities fraud, secured transactions, mortgage foreclosures, breach of fiduciary duty, corporate and partnership dissolutions, and commercial contract disputes, among other issues. He often serves as a court appointed fiduciary, and frequently, as a mediator and arbitrator.

Mr. Mandelker is probably best known in the field of government relations. He has counseled numerous candidates for public office (among them are Edward I. Koch, Rudolph Giuliani, Daniel Patrick Moynihan, and Michael Bloomberg) on election law and campaign finance issues. He has represented both the New York State Democratic and Republican parties, and advises trade associations and major campaign contributors on campaign finance and ballot access issues.
